Successful Careers of Two Young Lawyers.

WINS SPURS IN POLICE COURT

The Two Prosecuted Coxy and Captain
Brown—They Fight Many Battles Together.

For the past week the Assistant District Attorney, Alexander R. Mulloyny, has been working hard in his old office in the Police Court, to clear up all his business there, for tomorrow he steps into the office made vacant by the resignation of Assistant District Attorney Tom Taggart.

From now on Mr. Mulloyny, who for more than a decade prosecuted offenders brought to the United States branch of the Police Court, will conduct prosecutions before the higher criminal courts in the City Hall. He was called in to assist District Attorney Beach in the Rachel Ann Beall homicide case about two months ago, and a strong personal friendship was the result. Mr. Beach recognized his assistant's sterling qualities and thorough knowledge of criminal law, with which he is familiar in all its branches, and decided to call him to the main office. This is a promotion for Mr. Mulloyny, and his friends congratulate him warmly upon having at last earned for himself an enviable position after years of hard and tedious labor in the Police Court.

Ralph Given Like Him.
Mr. Mulloyny is succeeded by a man of the same caliber as himself, Ralph Given, a Washington boy, who worked himself up from a grocery clerk and office boy to the position of Assistant District Attorney in the Police Court.

For four years he had the same rank as Mr. Mulloyny in the Assistant District Attorney's office, but because of law, and longer service he came under Mr. Mulloyny. The two were most intimate throughout their connection with the office, and are the best of friends. Although Mr. Mulloyny realized that his new office is a great promotion he reluctantly gave up stakes from the Police Court, where he was so well and widely known and enjoyed the good will of practically all of the attorneys and judges who transacted business there.

Native of Richmond.

Alexander Mulloyny was born in Richmond in 1868. His parents came to Washington when he was still in knee breeches and he attended the Washington public schools. He finished the grammar school and that was as far as he could go because the high schools were at that time in course of construction. He decided to be an architect, and entered the offices of two prominent architects in Washington. After remaining there for several years he thought he would like to study law, and attended the National University of Law, graduating in the 80's. Taking the bar examination he passed with high honors, and the day he was admitted to practice he was appointed as an assistant district attorney, having made application for a vacant position in the office several weeks before taking the examination. He remained in the City Hall for several months, and in the meantime he was assigned to the Police Court, where he did exceptionally well for a new man.

Crime seemed to be on the increase at that time, and he was given an assistant, a clerk to remain in office while he was in court, and another while he was in the office.

Born in Washington.
Mr. Given was born in Washington on October 10, 1868. He attended the public schools, but as there were no high schools when he finished the grammar grades, he started out to work, obtaining a position as an office boy in the offices of Worthington & Adams. While sitting alone in the office he looked over the books in the library, and studied into technical points of law. In this manner he got a smattering of law, and thought he would like to emulate the prosperous attorneys for whom he worked.

A chance to make more money was afforded in John A. Magruder's grocery store, and he accepted the position. With the substantial increase in his salary he started out to study law, and had sufficient money to buy books out of which he studied law and in 1891 he was appointed a clerk in the office of District Attorney, now ex-Judge C. C. Cole, of the Police Court, and remained in Mr. Cole's room for about three months, when he was detailed to help Mr. Mulloyny. He still had the idea of becoming a lawyer, and entered the Georgetown College of Law, graduating in 1893, and passing the bar examination in 1890.

Made Assistant Prosecutor.

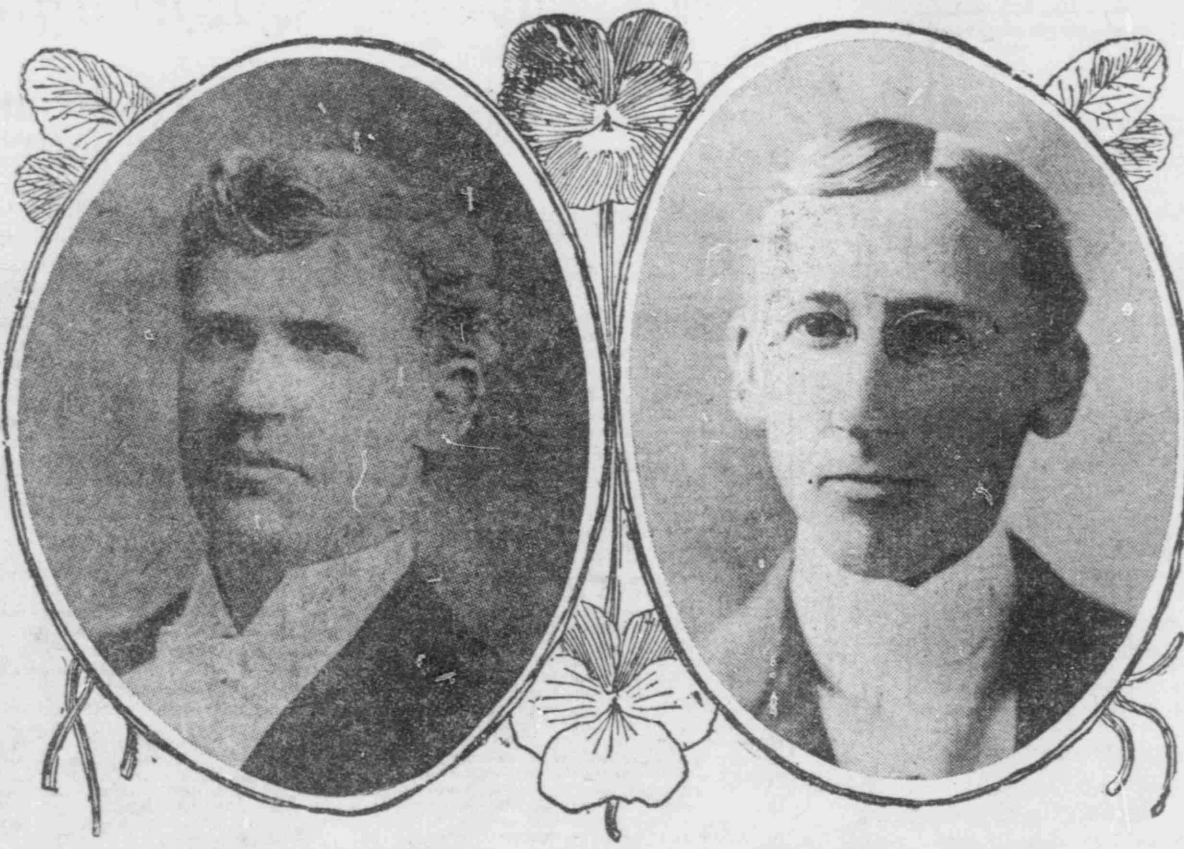

On the day he was admitted to the bar he was made Assistant District Attorney, and Mr. Mulloyny was relieved of some of the work in his office and in court, for Given proved to be an able assistant and a good prosecutor. Together they worked hard and faithfully, and gave satisfaction. It is doubtful if any younger or more energetic and enthusiastic prosecutors ever represented the Government in a case. Both men entered into the cases at bar with their whole hearts, and did their utmost to convict parties they believed to be guilty, and in the majority of cases, won out.

Among the famous personages prosecuted by the two was General Coxy, leader of Coxy's army, which invaded the city during Cleveland's last Administration. Coxy and his henchmen walked upon the grass at the Capitol, and as that was the only charge that could be put against them they were taken to court and turned over to the Assistant District Attorneys to be prosecuted. Coxy was convicted after a hard fight and sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or serve thirty days in jail. Considerable attention was paid to the case and the court room was thronged with persons brought there by curiosity.

Mulloyny Turns Policeman.

Mr. Mulloyny saw Captain Brown, of Coxy's army, in court and learned that he had also trod upon the sacred sward at the Capitol grounds, and forthwith grabbed him by the collar, threw him into the dock, and then filed an information against him and obtained a conviction. This caused a rumpus in Congress, as a member of the lower house rose on the floor several days after the conviction of the two men and asked that investigation be made in order to ascertain how Captain Brown was arrested. Mr. Mulloyny and Mr. Given also prosecuted the stewards of the Washington Jockey Club for conducting a

Sees Person Speaking Over Telephone Wire

Portland Man Exhibits Device by Which Features Are Transmitted—Combined Camera and Receiver Shows Picture in Dark.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—A telephone arrangement by which a person speaking may also see the face of the one at the other end of the line has been invented by J. B. Fowler, of this city. Fowler has been working since 1878 upon his device.

An idea came to him two months ago, he says, which, followed out, has resulted in the apparatus exhibited by him.

How far it will be possible to see faces over the wire is not stated, as Fowler has kept the entire line within his own residence. An apparatus resembling the front of a large camera is attached to the wire. There is also a telephonic transmitter. To see over the wire one puts his eyes to the tube, which corresponds to the lens of a camera.

Miss Lillian Fowler went to one end of the wire, twenty-five feet away, in another room, and her face appeared distinct and clear as a miniature painting at the observing end of the wire. As she spoke her lips were seen to move. The observer was in darkness, that he might see more clearly.

Fowler has not arranged his apparatus so that both persons may observe one another as they speak. He believes that this can easily be done.

Smoke Drives Guests
OUT FROM A HOTEL

Fire in Clothing Store Adjoining Source of Peril in Rooms of Bristol House.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—Fire, which started from an unknown cause under the furnishing goods store of Henry Zeller, at 32 East Sixth Street, early this morning, caused a panic among the guests of the Bristol hotel, which is overhauled, with offices on the second floor, and carrying a few belongings of women in the hotel.

The fire was discovered by Officer Lowenstein, who sent in a still alarm. In a moment or two people were pouring out into the halls and down the stairs into the street, clad only in their night clothes and carrying a few belongings of women in the hotel.

The fire, while it gained considerable headway at first, owing to the fact that the smoke was almost impenetrable, making it hard for the firemen to locate the seat of it, did not get into the hotel. It spread to several small stores and did considerable damage. There were seventy guests in the hotel.

VIENNA, Sept. 17.—An Armenian named Josef Kikor has had a costly experience, owing to his ignorance of the German language.

While on his way by rail from Trieste to Vienna he mislaid his ticket, and as he was unable to make the collector understand, the official forced him to get out of the train.

Thinking he could put the matter right in a moment with the station master and then re-enter the train, Kikor left a handbag containing 500 uncut diamonds, weighing 1,500 carats, in the compartment. To his horror, however, the train began to move, and Kikor attempted to jump into the carriage to recover his bag he was prevented by a porter.

THE TOMB OF CAIN.
The early traditions concerning the city of Damascus are curious and interesting, even though untrustworthy and contradictory.

By some of the ancient writers it was maintained that the city stands on or near the site of the Garden of Eden, and just opposite there is a beautiful meadow of red earth from which, it is said, God took the material from which he created Adam.

This field is called Ager Damascus, and near its center there formerly stood a pillar which was said to mark the precise spot where our first parent was created.

A few miles out there is an eminence called the Mountain of Abel, supposed by some to be the place where the first two brothers offered their sacrifices, also the spot where the first murder was committed. The most interesting spot pointed out, however, is about three leagues from the city, where an old ruin is shown which all the Orient believes to be the tomb of Cain.

The traditions respecting this famous spot are known to antedate the Christian era by several hundred years. Up to the time of Vespasian the interior of the tomb is said to have been lighted by lamps and merely given turning lamps so commonly used by the ancients.

GENERAL STAFF ASSIGNS INFANTRY TO PHILIPPINES

Twenty-first Regiment Will Go First to Relieve the Eighteenth—Others Will Follow.

Members of the general staff of the army have agreed upon the assignment of infantry to the Philippines for the coming year.

The Twenty-first will be the first regiment to go. It will relieve the Eighteenth and will arrive in Manila not later than January 15, 1905. The Eighteenth will probably take station at Port Leavenworth on its return.

About March 1 the Sixth Infantry, now stationed at Fort Leavenworth, will sail from San Francisco. The Nineteenth, now stationed at Vancouver Barracks, will sail from San Francisco about April 1. This will be followed by the Ninth Infantry, now stationed at Madison Barracks and Fort Thomas, with one company at Allegheny Arsenal and in Pekin each. That command will leave May 1, while on June 1 the Sixteenth Infantry, now at Fort McPherson, Ga., will depart for Manila.

These regiments will relieve, respectively, the Fourteenth, Twentieth, Fourth, and Seventeenth Regiments, which will sail from Manila on March 15, May 15, June 15, and July 15, respectively.

It has been recommended that the Fourteenth Infantry be assigned to duty at Vancouver Barracks on its return to the United States, that the Twentieth Regiment be sent to Madison Barracks and Fort Ontario, that the Fourth Infantry be sent to Fort Thomas, although there is some question of this assignment, and that the Seventeenth Infantry be assigned to Fort McPherson.

In addition to the regiments here specified there will be withdrawn from the Philippines eight regiments, while five more will be designated for duty in the islands during the year.

MANAGEMENT OF WIVES.
One thing the tactful husband does is to let his wife cry. It is not meant that he drives her to crying or that he lets her weep while he stands unsympathetically by with his hands in his trousers pocket, his feet apart and grinning sardonically.

It is meant that when an emotional woman needs a good cry he realizes that it will relieve the tension. He does not get up and rage about and kick footstools out of the way and say, "Oh, for heaven's sake, stop crying or you'll drive me to drink!"

No. He goes and pats her shoulder soothingly and says: "There, little woman! I'm sorry the cook has left and your new gown looks up crookedly, but cheer up. Let's go out and have a jolly little dinner, and tomorrow I'll write that tailor a letter that will make his hair curl!"

Then she looks up through her tears and thinks how handsome and big and strong and glorious he is, and before the dinner is over she has thought up two ways in which to economize, and so pay for the extravagance of his order to the waiter, for the common purse is not elastic, and she knows it.

TWO CONVENTIONS OF ST. ANDREW'S

Brotherhood Meets in Philadelphia and Boston.

PLANS FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Religious, Business, and Social Meetings at the Sessions in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—There is just now great interest in the two coming Episcopal conventions of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew to be held in Philadelphia from September 19 to October 2, and the general convention of the Episcopal Church, which begins at Boston October 4, and will last till near the end of that month.

Interest in the general convention is accentuated because the primate of all England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, is to be present, but it is expected that he will also be present at part of the Philadelphia meeting, probably speaking at the mass meeting in the Baptist Temple, which is to be held under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Sunday afternoon, October 2.

Bishop Tuttle Presides.
The Brotherhood convention in Philadelphia will be devoted to religious, business, and social meetings. Bishop Tuttle, presiding bishop of the United States, will conduct the opening service at Holy Trinity Church on Thursday morning, September 29, at 10 o'clock.

In the evening of the same day there will be a mass meeting in the Academy of Music, with the Bishop of Pennsylvania, the Rt. Rev. Dr. Oz William Whitaker, as presiding officer. Friday evening, in Holy Trinity Church, there will be a service of preparation for the corporate communion, to be led by the Rev. W. A. Guerry, chaplain of the University of the South.

Saturday evening, October 1, there will be a reception to the delegates at the Academy of Fine Arts, and on Sunday morning the Rev. Charles H. Brent, bishop of the Philippines, will deliver the annual charge to the brotherhood. Sunday afternoon there will be a mass meeting for boys in St. Luke's Church, Bishop Coleman, of Delaware, presiding, and with the bishop of Fond du Lac as one of the speakers. The farewell service will be in Holy Trinity Church Sunday evening, with the Rev. Dr. Harry Davis, of Philadelphia, presiding.

Twenty-one Years Old.
This will be the nineteenth annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, although the organization has been in existence for twenty-one years. It has grown to very large proportions in this country and has branches in England, Scotland, and Australia. Delegates from England and Jamaica will be present at the convention, besides large numbers from the United States. The Philadelphia brotherhood men have the assurance that the convention will be the largest the organization has ever held, and they are now perfecting their arrangements for the reception and entertainment of the visitors.

This has entailed a large amount of work, but the Philadelphia members of the brotherhood are greatly pleased that their city was chosen as the place of meeting, because they look to the convention to cause a revival of local interest in the organization similar to that which followed the convention of 1891, also held in Philadelphia. Then new chapters were organized and old ones took on new life. During this year's convention the brotherhood headquarters will be at the Aldine, one of the best of Philadelphia's excellent hotels.

THE OUNCE OF PREVENTION.
"I have taught my children," said a mother I know, "to come to me immediately for even a pin scratch. I do not mean to exaggerate little pains, but my father, who was a physician, taught me how easy was precaution beside cure. I have taught them to keep their hands in sterilized cheesecloth before a particle of dirt can enter it. One so often finds children with stubborn sores on their hands or feet, which take forever to heal. They were probably caused by a rusty nail, by the dirty sort of knife one finds in a boy's pocket, or by a broken bottle, which may have held anything. The ugliest wound of this kind, if cared for immediately, will heal in a few days. In nearly every city during the winter a course is given on nursing and simple surgical work which mother may find both interesting and profitable. If this is not available, I would advise every mother to go to her physician and pay him a fee, if necessary, for a lesson on cleaning a wound and bandaging it, as well as what to do for the bruises and contusions which are of daily occurrence in the growing family."—Good Housekeeping.

Rich's Fall Footwear

the recognized standard of Fashion correctness.

Again the fall season has rolled around, and, as in the many seasons past, it finds this great shoe establishment the leading shoe shop in the South.

It finds Rich's styles the accepted fashions by people of taste and refinement.

It finds the stocks and assortments fully complete and ready for early selection.

It finds this the most complete shoe shop in the world, barring none, showing footwear for every need, and all of it up to that standard of excellence and elegance and fashion exclusiveness which brings the name of Rich to mind first when distinctive footwear is thought of.

To describe the many handsome effects for fall and winter would require a page of this newspaper—our window display is but a limited reflection of what is to be seen inside. One whole floor devoted to the selling of men's and young men's footwear. One whole floor devoted to the selling of women's street shoes. One whole floor given to the exhibit and selling of women's evening, reception, and wedding footwear, carriage boots, riding boots, and leggings and other novelty footwear for women. A whole floor of children's and misses' footwear.

Competent shoefitters in every department—who are anxious to please you and who see to it that you get properly fitted.

Just now, when young ladies and young men are making preparations for their return to college we wish to direct special attention to our specially-made "College" footwear, combining style, comfort, and durability.

We also ask the attention of mothers who are now getting the younger ones ready for school. The question of comfort in children's shoes has been given the most serious consideration, for we realize that the little feet are easily ruined by ill-fitting footwear. Such confidence have mothers in this store that the children are often sent here with notes asking us to use our best judgment.

Especially efforts have been made to show a complete variety of wedding footwear for the benefit of those who will take part in the different weddings in social life which will take place during the coming month of October. Footwear for the entire trousseaux can be purchased here. Special orders to suit any individual taste executed promptly.

Enthusiasts of riding, golfing, hunting, and other sports will find here the necessary footwear for wear while thus engaged.
